

To Whom It May Concern:

As a Project Manager in the Roads Capital section of the Public Works Department for the Region of Peel, I'm responsible for the construction and maintenance of Regional infrastructure such as roads, sewers and watermains. During the 2010 and 2011 construction season, I had the opportunity to work with Fourwinds Construction Inc. on the Queensway Improvements Project.

Fourwinds Construction Inc. were responsible for the replacement of the 400mm concrete watermain which was a major component of this contract. I found their performance to be exemplary and I can firmly state that they have exhibited great capability in moving this project forward while overcoming numerous difficulties and have interacted well with various stakeholders including property owners and the entire project team. Their construction proficiency and problem solving ability have proven to be an essential factor in the success of this project.

An illustration of their exemplary performance on this project occurred when Fourwinds Construction Inc. were constructing a complicated watermain by-pass in the middle of a very busy intersection at Cawthra Rd. and Queensway. To minimize the impact on the area residents and traffic, they completed this undertaking as one continuous operation starting on Friday afternoon and completing Saturday evening, using two separate crews. The way they planned, prepared and carried out the whole operation was very proficient. They exhibited great ingenuity and flexibility when they were faced with an unforeseen situation in the middle of the night. A supplier provided an incorrect piece of pipe, which jeopardized the whole operation. Fourwinds Construction Inc. identified the problem and rectified the situation by mobilizing an additional welding crew.

In general, I have found it to be a pleasure working with Fourwinds Construction Inc. They are team players who have proven that they are willing to put forth an exceptional level of effort to ensure the final success. I firmly believe Fourwinds Construction Inc. will make an outstanding addition to any project.
